ASSA ABLOY Group Brand Ceco Door Introduces Communicating Opening System with Industry Leading Sound Transmission Class (STC) Rating

September 24, 2015, New Haven, CT—ASSA ABLOY Group brand Ceco Door has expanded their STC door and frame offerings to include a communicating door opening with an ultra-high STC 66 rating. Ceco Door Sound-Tech Xpress+ is a complete door and frame solution for applications requiring sound resistance ranging from STC 56-66.

“We’re pleased to provide a solution for building owners who want exceptional sound attenuation in industrial and manufacturing facilities, sound studios, medical areas, or many other applications,” said Howard Schrier, Director of Hollow Metal Specialty Products, ASSA ABLOY Door Group. “The design of these systems enhances usability of a space by providing strong sound containment via interior and exterior openings that are highly reliable and made to last. This assembly is very exciting for us since it leads the industry in sound attenuation for 1-3/4” thick doors.”

Ceco Door Sound-Tech Xpress+ door and frame system meets or exceeds the following stringent third-party testing standards:

- Tested to ASTM E90, E1332 and E413 rating of STC 66
- Outdoor/Indoor Transmission Class (OITC) rating of 46
- Compliant with HMMA 865 and SDI 128 specifications

Ceco Door Sound-Tech Xpress+ door and frame system consists of two flush single swinging hollow metal doors within a single frame forming a communicating opening. It utilizes cam lift hinges, flat saddle thresholds and adjustable door bottoms to ensure the doors seal completely and function easily. Ceco Door doors and frames were tested with locking hardware from ASSA ABLOY Group brands, for a complete opening solution.
